Dear Ms. Clark:

It is my pleasure to provide this unsolicited letter of recommendation for Dr. Stephen Sroka as a motivational speaker for either adult professional development or student leadership conferences.

Dr. Sroka has spoken in Miles City twice in the past four months. The first time he provided a day long inservice to our faculty and staff as well as the employees of surrounding school districts. His presentation was one of the best received that I have witnessed in a number of years. His message was on target, his delivery was fast moving, hard hitting and enjoyable. The common comment I received from district employees was, "When can we have him back for a follow-up session?"

We recently hosted the 47th annual MASC State Convention at CCDHS, October 22-24. Dr. Sroka had originally planned to be speaking in Santee, California; however, postponed that engagement for a day so that he could open our convention. His talk was titled, "The Power of One to Change the Future-Doing the Right Thing Now." His presentation was very well received by MASC advisors and the almost 600 students attending the leadership conference. His message focused on issues that are real to students in today's society and was presented in a manner which literally had the students "eating out of his hand."

I highly recommend Stephen Sroka for your most serious consideration. I believe that he would do an outstanding job for a variety of audiences ranging from lead conferences to the NASC National Convention.

Sincerely yours,

Fred Anderson, Ph.D.
Principal
